a panel discussion will follow the movie

REJECT examines the universal experience of social rejection. With a blend of scientific evidence and personal stories, the film is driven by a core idea – that social rejection has a profound impact on human life. Two personal stories are woven throughout the film, one of them centering on a Stillwater, Okla. student. Justin, 5-year-old son of Mexican immigrants, has already been labeled a troublemaker at school. In the film he finds himself in a new classroom under the watchful eye of teacher Terry Varnell, who understands that Justin needs boundaries, and more importantly, to feel accepted. The film aims to raise public awareness about the serious consequences of interpersonal rejection in its many forms – bullying, parental neglect, race discrimination, and other forms of social rejection.

Panelists: Terry Varnell, Kindergarten teacher featured in Reject and Oklahoma Top 10 Teacher of the Year
